SsangYong Musso 2.2 4WD EX

MIGHTY CAPABILITY NEEDN'T come with a mighty price tag. Cheap pricing is no new concept to Korean brand SsangYong, but the Musso is the first of its products that truly mixes it with the best in its class while significantly undercutting its rivals.

Its biggest strength? Well, aside from the aforementioned, it's enormous inside – so much so that it makes the Nissan Navara feel positively cramped. What's more, everything looks and feels nicer than in the Mitsubishi L200; rub the dashboard or flick a switch and the sense of quality truly belies the price.

The Musso also has a trump card to play against any other pick-up on sale today: it can carry its maximum payload (1058kg) while towing a 3500kg trailer at the same time..

Out on the road, its steering is as impressive as that of pricier trucks, its strong diesel engine is among the most refined and its six-speed manual gearbox is impressively slick.

Of the four trims, entry-level EX is our pick, because it gets you remote central locking, air conditioning, a media screen with DAB radio, hill descent control and alloy wheels for just £25k – not to mention a seven-year warranty.
